A Postical Prisoner

Governor FORAKER last week pardoned MARY E. Hover, an inmate of the prison she wrote a poem of which the following is an extract: "God pity the wretched prisoners In their lonely cells this day, Whatever the sin that tripped them; God pity them still, I say.

Only a least of sunshine Clefs y the rusty bars, Only a states of agure, Only a cluster of stars. Only a barren future To starve their hopes upon, Only stinging memories

Of a past that's better gone. Only a scorn from woman, Only hate from man, Only remorse to whisper Of a life that might have been.

Once they were little children, Porhaps their unstained feet Were led by a gentle mother Toward the Golden street.

Therefore, if in life's forest They since have lost their way, For the sake of her who bore them · God pity them still." I say.

And ye who judge so harshly. Are you sure the stumbling-stone Which tripped the feet of others May not have bruised your own? Then pray for the wretched prisoners
